The rising STAR of Texas

The Eighth Annual International Conference on Information, Logistics and Supply Chain, ILS2020, will take place in Austin Texas from April 22-24, 2020. Hosted by the McCoy College of Business at Texas State University, this international conference focuses on topics related to interconnected supply chains in an era of innovation from the perspectives of technological and economic sustainability as well as the human, social and environmental impact.

ILS2020 will bring together over 120 international researchers, business leaders and professionals representing both academia as well as industry. The conference will provide a unique opportunity for the academic and industrial community to share their experiences and developments in Information and Decision Systems for Supply Chain Management, E-supply Chain, Artificial Intelligence, Supply Chain Management, and Supply Chain and Operations Analytics.

As a leader in the industry, we ask you to consider supporting the conference at a leadership level. In addition to the educational workshops and networking, conference partners are recognized on marketing materials including our website and have opportunities to participate in conference panels and showcase their organization with branded material at the conference site.

I've included here, descriptions of the Sponsorship levels and the associated benefits for each. I look forward to discussing this opportunity with you.
